

Abstract Policies and Procedures

General Information

- Only non-US citizens who are currently residing in Asia are eligible to submit their research.
- All abstract presentations and question-and-answer periods will be in English.
- Investigators do not need be ACC members to participate.
- General Information subject to change due to circumstances beyond the ACC's control.

Policies

- Abstracts are not eligible for consideration if the paper has been presented at any major conference or published previously (whether in print or electronically).
- Only submitters who fall under the FIT/early career category are eligible for the ACC Asia Conference 2020 Abstract Award.
- Only researchers/submitters who are under 40 years old at the end of 2019 are eligible for the Singapore YIA Award. Their research must have also been completed locally in Singapore with the first author playing a major role in the study.
- Follow all instructions for completing the submission. Be sure to structure the content into Background, Methods, Results and Conclusion sections.
- Clarity of expression will be considered in the review process. The overall quality of language used should assure comprehension by the reader.
- Use a maximum of five unique abbreviations in the body of the abstract. No abbreviations should appear in the title. Place abbreviations in parentheses after the full word the first time it appears. Abbreviations increase the difficulty of reading and evaluating abstracts, which will be considered in the review process.
- Any human experimentation must conform to the principles of the Declaration of Helsinki of the World Medical Association.
- The Planning Group endorses the position of the American Association for the Advancement for Science in requiring assurances of the responsible use of animals in research. All submissions for consideration must be in compliance with the guidelines.
- The submitting author acts on behalf of all co-authors and in submitting an abstract, transfers to the American College of Cardiology the copyright and all other rights in the material comprising the abstract if the abstract is accepted. Co-authors reserve the following: a) all proprietary rights other than copyright, such as patent rights; and b) the right to use all or part of the abstract in future works of their own. The American College of Cardiology, as holder of the copyright on the accepted abstract, reserves all rights of reproduction, distribution, performance, display, and the right to create derivative works in both print and digital formats.
- All abstracts submitted in connection with ACC international conferences are disclosed to members of the peer review selection committee, as well as to ACC employees and contractors as necessary.
- Although ACC and ACC employees or contractors cannot guarantee the confidentiality of submitted abstracts, every effort will be made to ensure confidentiality of submitted material.
- Each presenting author will be asked to comply with the ACC Disclosure Policy. Indication of the relationship and the associated commercial entity is required for each presenting author.
- Primary responsibility for compliance with any disclosure or nondisclosure requirements resides solely with researchers and/or research sponsors.
